The Narrow Bridge Film and Panel

Last week we collaborated with the Lexi Cinema in north London and the Australian film director, Esther Takac to hold a screening of Esther's award-winning documentary, The Narrow Bridge. The film tells the story of four members of the Bereaved Families Forum (two Palestinians and two Israelis) who despite the pain and trauma of losing loved ones have worked for peace in the region for many years.

The sold-out screening was followed by a moving Q&A with Muslim interfaith leader and peace activist, Julie Siddiqi, and Magen Inon whose parents were murdered by Hamas on Oct 7th.

There was an urgent call from the audience for the film to be shown widely to diverse audiences due to a growing polarization of opinion and demonization of others.

Comments on social media afterwards included:

"Wow, what a roller coaster of emotion the film takes us on. We need to make a commitment to get it seen by as many people as possible. Magen is a credit to his beautiful parents."

"It was the most powerful and moving evening. I hope more people get to see this extraordinary film."
